WHAT IS “FAIL FORWARD” ALL ABOUT?

If you want to develop your talents, you are going to fail in the process. Failing is not comfortable. Failing is not fun! And there is no way around it if you want to learn and grow.

Fail-resilience is the ability to deal in a constructive way with failing. We believe that everyone can develop fail-resilience. Once you master it, you can learn anything and everything you want and need.

The ‘Fail forward’ movement is a community of educators and young people who support each other in playing and failing big. Granting yourself and others permission to fail and support each other through the learning experience is the core of fail-resilience and the movement.

Stop playing small and start failing big! Join the movement today!
